FROM THE EDITORS IN CHIEF

"No one is born hating another person because of the color of his skin, or his background, or his religion. People must learn to hate, and if they can learn to hate, they can be taught to love, for love comes more naturally to the human heart than its opposite."

- Nelson Mandela, Long Walk to Freedom

Armed conflicts, civil and religious wars, inequitable distribution of resources have all led to the absolute defoliation of world. Each country and each individual lives in fear of uncertainty. Terrorist group wreak havoc and millions have been displaced from their homes in the last century. As refugees enter the countries, the lack of resources for such a large influx creates more problems than it solves.

One of the most important documents in modern history is the Charter of the United Nations. It was the very first Article citing the preservation of world peace as the most important goal of the UN. Before the foundation of the United Nations Organisations, peace was defined as the absence of war. The modern definition understands it to be a lot more- respect for human rights, conflict prevention, disarmament, education for peace, and even human post-conflict rehabilitation. Today's understanding of peace has grown, but so has the list of wars and civil wars.

Ever since the World Wars, the United Nations has spread its wings to bring positive change in all possible spheres.

The press has been an important medium to spread awareness, and has played the role of a catalyst to spark social and political change and to hold governments accountable. The UN stressed that this vital right must be ensured across the world by creating the conditions that allow journalists to work safely.

At LMGMUN, we wish to bring to a single platform, the leaders and politicians of tomorrow. The fourth edition of the same in 2018 seeks to host a plethora of students from across the country who will be debating in several innovative committees. The Official Press Release of LMGMUN, The Spectator, hopes to stimulate minds and present, like any good media body, unbiased pictures of the issues and debates that mould strong and clear opinions. We hope to provide a direction and insight into the discussions through detailed analysis of agendas and discussions through interaction and communication.

Delegates, we welcome you all to the fourth, and yet most enriching experience at LMGMUN. Testing the diplomatic immunity, academia, research and skill LMGMUN hopes to provide a scintillating experience to all those associated.

THE SECRETARY

GENERAL'S ADDRESS

It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to the fourth session of La Martiniere Girls' Model United Nations 2018.

Over the years, La Martiniere Girls' Model United Nations has not only gained praise for its quality debate but also for its hospitality. La Martiniere Girls' Model United Nations has lived up to La Martiniere's well known tradition of hosting a plethora of delegates from reputed schools of India, and it has been possible only because of the hard work of the Faculty Advisors, Secretariat, Logistics and the International Press. La Martiniere Girls' Model United Nations has never hesitated in simulating committees of contemporary relevance, as well as unconventional committees that truly stir a delegate's senses. This helps introduce new ideas and helps the delegates get an all round understanding of International Relations, be it the Advisory Panel, Central Intelligence Agency and Komitet Gosudarstvennoy Bezopasnosti in the previous editions of the conference, or the Government Communications Headquarters, Fidel Castro's Cabinet or John F. Kennedy's Cabinet in this year's conference. The main aim of the conference has always been to provide the students with a platform that helps them enhance their debating skills.

The International Press has been an important part of the conference ever since its inception. Our press has never hesitated in writing about the true structure of a committee, and reflecting a journalist's view in all its vigour. The IP, I believe, has its own ways of having the reader in splits. While casually reading about a Directive passed in a committee your eyes might casually find themselves gazing at some snobbish, pompous comment passed by an Executive Board member. While the Secretariat has spent hours in school, tirelessly making arrangements for the conference, it is important to remember that our writers in the International Press have worked day in and day out to frame subtle yet hilarious write ups for the Secretariat. At the same time, they have explored brilliant, innovative and coeval concepts for The Spectator. The newsletters are sure to an amalgamation of thought provoking editorials and witty reports, which will provide an insight of every committee, and beyond.

I look forward to hosting all the students at the conference and hope that this year too, LMGMUN makes a great platform for diplomacy, conflict resolution and consensus. The delegates attending the conference can be sure of that they will leave with an enriching experience, brimming with intellectual discussions pertaining to the modern community. I hope that the delegates depart with an experience that will provide them a broader perspective, a more connected character and with memorable moments that can be cherished for a lifetime.

Yours Sincerely,
Vanshika Sharma,
Secretary General,

La Martiniere Girls' Model United Nations

La Martiniere Girls' College, through its continued dedication to pioneering education and maintaining school traditions, has earned its reputation as one of the leading educational institutions in India. The school was founded in accordance with the will of Major General Claude Martin, a Frenchman who accepted the post of Second Lieutenant in the East India Company's army, when the French domination in India came to end. Through the efforts of the staff and the students, La Martiniere Girls' College has been ranked 1st in Uttar Pradesh and 10th in India on the list of 'Education World India School Rankings 2016'.

The former Principal of La Martiniere Girls College, Late Mrs. F. Abraham, was an exemplary lady and a dynamic leader who always encouraged the students to strive for excellence. It is through her support that the MUN Club of our school was established in the year 2014. Our current Principal, Mrs A.Dass, is a remarkable and far sighted woman who lays immense stress on academics as well as co-curricular activities. She has been responsible for a number of educational, social and cultural initiatives that have benefitted the students and the community at large, greatly.

The La Martiniere Girls' College Model United Nations Club aims at training students in skills such as public speaking, debating, critical thinking, teamwork and leadership. Each year, our girls participate in a number of MUN conferences across the country and make the school proud by winning a plethora of awards in the same. Over the last few years, the MUN club has become an integral part of the college as we firmly believe that the world community today needs a group of people with an international outlook to solve problems, and that Model United Nations provides the best platform to instill these qualities in students.

PRINCIPAL'S NOTE

Mrs Ambili is the light in the life of every Political Science student who enters class eleven. A fountain of knowledge, Mrs Ambili does not restrict the boundaries of her class to textbooks, rather tries to make her students politically aware and give the subject a place in their hearts. Her unique teaching style includes regular debates and Youth Parliament sessions to make the students familiar with the working of different political systems. LMGMUN's personalised Wonder Woman makes sure that her witty, satirical yet knowledgeable classes get rapt attention from her students. According to her, the present political systems need to be reformed and she is often advised by the students to contest in the elections. Encouragement to new ventures and practical application of knowledge are some of the gems Mrs Ambili's students receive. Recognition of personal skills and full potential of an individual beyond academics make her one of the most loved teachers. The driving force of LMGMUN and the foundation brick of the MUN club is always ready to provide her guidance to make them aware citizens and the best of MUNners. Students not only leave her class as literates but as educated individuals for a better tomorrow.

OUR FACULTY ADVISOR

"We have entered into an era where parents want their children to score above ninety five percent. A trend has emerged where only marks based education is given importance, with little to no emphasis on overall development of the child. However, we at La Martiniere Girls' College give equal importance to academics as well as co curricular activities. We believe that co curricular activities give the students self esteem, confidence and soft skills that are required in today's world.

Model United Nations is an excellent way and the one of the best platforms to hone the skills of the students as they not only produce future diplomats but also create a generation of writers, speakers and world leaders. It is an interesting way of learning about the world. In this era of globalization, being globally aware is more important than ever and MUNs provide the students with that awareness.

La Martiniere Girls' College has been organizing its Model UN Conference since the past three years. With every year we have grown and an increasing number of prestigious schools have been taking part in the Conference. I would like to give the credit for the success of LMGMUN to our faculty advisor, Mrs A. Ambili and the able student body which is behind organizing this event. As we begin with the fourth session of LMGMUN, I would like to wish them luck and success." - Mrs. A, Dass

*Vanshika
Sharma*

Vanshika is a graduate of La Martiniere Girls' College who read Humanities with Mathematics and Economics. She was a member of the MUN Society in the College and has represented the college in various MUN Conferences across the nation, LMGMUN 2015 being her first. Being an avid MUNner she believes in the aphorism "A good debater is a good listener" and listening is a tool that comes handy in an MUN. In a lot of MUNs the prospect of listening to other people as well as yourself and a specific portfolio/country adds to your knowledge base and helps you develop your opinions unlike other formats of debates.

She believes that the significance of winning awards cannot surpass the importance of the learnings and memories that you take away from a conference. What makes Vanshika a dedicated MUNner, is her ability to analyse situations from a practical standpoint and her constant efforts to make sure everyone around her feels included in the topic at hand. Vanshika is also a great sportsman. She has excelled in Basketball and Badminton and has devoted 14 years of her life to rigorous Swimming practices. She prides herself on her Hindi film industry expertise and ever blossoming love for Shah Rukh Khan.

A huge part of what makes her warm and welcoming is her happy-go-lucky nature. Vanshika is bright and good-natured and believes in asking questions and demanding answers. She says what she is thinking at all times. Consequently, one can always trust her for brutally honest advice. One should, however, not mistake Vanshika's goofy demeanour for someone who is an idler because she takes pride in being a hard worker especially regarding matters she is passionate about. She makes a constant effort to push herself, even if it means facing the toughest of obstacles all alone. She thinks emotionally and it is her emotions that make her a sensitive and empathetic confidant. One of the most beautiful qualities about her is her selflessness. She could be tired to the bone and still be ready to help out others in need without any reluctance.

Her goal is the pursuit of Mathematics because she loves the sensibility and insightfulness the subject portrays. She very aptly describes it as "Pure Mathematics is, in its way, the poetry of logical ideas." Serving as the Secretary General, she is looking forward to learning a lot from the conference and the delegates it is hosting.

"And they wondered day and night about what she'd be,
if not a mystery."

Kashish Gupta is a senior at La Martiniere Girls' College and is pursuing Humanities with Mathematics and Economics. She is also the Lyons House Vice Captain at her school. Having decided to leave a mark on everything she does, this woman won her first award in her very first conference itself—LMGMUN 2015. Ever since then, awards and Kashish go hand in hand.

A workaholic coupled with managerial and organising skills one could kill for—she is definitely an alpha who will get her work done in the time provided to her. Her uncanny yet well-organised working style ensures that everything is done in an orderly and timely fashion. She is a lady with strong beliefs and firm convictions. A hard working lady, who once she sets her mind, will achieve all she wishes to.

A blend of an extraordinary personality with conventional hobbies is what makes Kashish incredible. In her free time, Kashish tends to play the synthesizer and read novels of the philosophical and romantic genre.

Her interest and curiosity in International issues made Kashish an avid MUNner. She believes that MUNs are not an avenue entirely to compete, but one for learning, knowledge and friendships. She sincerely believes and works towards making LMGMUN an avenue which brings out the seriousness of this activity and ensures that it fulfills the purpose for which it has been initiated.

*Aaddhyaa
Rastogi*

Aaddhyaa Rastogi, a student of class 12, reading Science with Mathematics and Computer Applications, started her Model United Nations journey with the first edition of LMGMUN in 2015 and opened her bag of achievements at her very first MUN. She went on to win awards at various other conferences. She is an enthusiastic student who juggles time between extra-curricular activities and academics. Accompanied by her strong wit and an unrivalled sense of rationality and poise, Aaddhyaa leaves a bold and positive impact on all she meets. Being a lady of firm beliefs and convictions, Aaddhyaa strives to fulfil all that she takes on her platter.

In her spare time, she loves to strum her guitar or obsess over "Pizza" or food in general. A real life manifestation of the popular character Joey from the show F.R.I.E.N.D.S., she matches his sense of humour and perhaps even dumbness, as well as the strong affinity towards the food community. It is this love that makes her eager to take up culinary arts as a profession, later in life.

It is Aaddhyaa's strong presence of mind, positive and an upright approach that makes her an avid MUNner and a successful public speaker. She has unassailable leadership skills that make her the reliable, adaptable, ambitious and pragmatic person that she is.

Aaddhyaa believes that in today's world, MUNs are not only a medium to making the world a better place, free of conflicts and problems, but also making it a place with better and more confident human beings who believe in solving issues entirely with emphasis of humanity and compassion. With an opinionated yet unorthodox bent of mind, Aaddhyaa promises to offer an unparalleled experience to everyone at LMGMUN 2018.

A 12th grader, Aayra Angrish is currently reading Humanities with Economics and Psychology. An enthusiastic public speaker coupled with a dedicated and passionate work attitude, she is one person who strives for perfection in everything. Her ideas are lucidly present in her clear speech, however complex they may be. Aayra is a person to rally behind, and she will guide you to worthy ends with her desire for perfection.

Aayra started her MUN journey at LMGMUN 2015 and then went on to win accolades at local as well as national level conferences. Her speeches are engaging and entertaining, largely due to her wit and this has helped her immensely at achieving success in each MUN conference that she attends. Having made up her mind on pursuing a future in International Relations and Global Affairs, she is decidedly one of the most interesting people to talk to. Unlike most teenagers, her favourite pastimes include watching historical documentaries, and reading books on different countries' functioning, past, present and future. An ardent lover of all things Russian, she is sure to spot a person in red.

This young lady is a person who will always be around to brighten your gloomy days. She is a committed and diligent worker who knows how to get work done. She believes that confidence, passion and hard work are the key elements to achieving success in life and hopes that the delegates at LMGMUN 2018 too will strive to bring about a change in the world.

SPECULATOR

UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL

The United Nations Security Council has primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security. The Security Council takes the lead in determining the existence of a threat to the peace or act of aggression. It calls upon the parties at dispute to settle it by peaceful means and recommends methods of adjustment or terms of settlement. The United Nations has described Sudan's western Darfur region as one of the world's worst humanitarian crises. More than 2.3 million people have been displaced, most of them living in squalid camps in Darfur and neighboring Chad. Peacekeepers and aid workers have restricted access to those in need. The conflict flared in 2003 when rebels in Darfur took up arms, accusing the government of neglecting the region. The government responded with a counter-insurgency campaign. Since then, civilians have come under attack from government troops, pro-government militia and rebel groups. Arab militias are also fighting each other, and there are frequent clashes between tribes. Khartoum, the capital of Sudan moved swiftly to crush the revolt by the two rebel groups - Justice and Equality Movement (JEM) and the Sudan Liberation Army (SLA). The conflict spilt over into neighboring Chad and Central African Republic. The Sudanese government is widely accused of arming militias drawn from Arab tribes who have used scorched-earth tactics against the rebels' communities. Khartoum has denied the accusations.

The question remains whether the rebels can be persuaded to stop fighting, and whether the government will make the necessary concessions to allow a genuine national dialogue to take place.

As a delegate of this committee, one's motive must be to come up with solutions that reflect the national nature of the crisis since the conflicts across the country are becoming increasingly intertwined, further diminishing the chances of success for locally negotiated settlements.

PRESIDENT- NARAYAN SHARMA

Currently pursuing his Bachelor's in Technology from KIIT University, Bhubaneshwar, Narayan fell in love with Model United Nations 3 years ago. After having travelled to almost every corner of the country, exploring different cultures, and meeting different people, all due to MUNs, he has still not taken a break. His belief is that MUNs are the best platform for young brains to challenge themselves and learn something new.

VICE- PRESIDENT- RAGHAW WADHWA

A student from New Delhi, Raghav Wadhwa started MUNning three years ago and has been a part of more than 15 conferences since then. He takes keen interest in crisis simulations and is a huge Potterhead. He believes that Model United Nations help in increasing your knowledge and debating skills. Apart from being a National level cricket player, he drums, cooks and writes in his free time.

WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION

The World Health Organization works closely with the United Nations system to support its member states in achieving their national priorities and ensuring better health outcomes. It acts as the directing and coordinating authority on international health work and assists Governments in strengthening health services.

The Sierra Leone mudslide of August 2017 had been described as one of the worst natural disasters in decades. On the morning of August 14th, after three days of torrential rainfall and devastating floods, a mudslide killed more than five-hundred people in the mountain town of Regent on the outskirts of Freetown, sweeping away homes and misplacing hundreds of residents. The destructive behaviour of the mudslide was exacerbated by a number of factors, including but not limited to the city's situation at or below sea level, poor infrastructure, and ineffective drainage system. The Regent suburban district endured the most devastation. Satellite images showed extensive damage, with hundreds of buildings destroyed. The Connaught Hospital mortuary was overwhelmed by nearly three-hundred bodies on the first day alone, forcing workers to lay victims on floors and outside the building to be identified. Due to lack of manpower and threat of disease bodies were buried in mass graves. It left people in Regent wading through streets waist deep in muddy water for days. The landslides caused damage to water and sanitation systems in affected areas thus resulting in contamination of open water sources, and creating breeding sites for vectors like mosquitoes.

In terms of available healthcare and health status Sierra Leone is rated very poorly. Globally, infant and maternal mortality rates remain the highest. The major causes of illness within the country are preventable with modern technology and medical advances. There are substantial deficiencies in the medical infrastructure in Sierra Leone which are likely to compromise effective care. This represents a serious barrier to access to emergency healthcare.

As a delegate of this committee, one's motive should be to come up with solutions to deal with the aftermath of the August 2017 mudslide that suits the nature and accessibility of medical infrastructure in Sierra Leone.

G C H Q

GOVERNMENT COMMUNICATIONS HEADQUARTERS

The Government Communication Headquarters (GCHQ) is an intelligence and security organization responsible for providing signals intelligence (SIGINT) and information assurance to the government and armed forces of the United Kingdom. With a Permanent Secretary (currently Jeremy Fleming) as its director, GCHQ is the responsibility of the country's Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Boris Johnson) but it is NOT a part of the Foreign Office. Located in "The Doughnut", Hubble Road, Cheltenham, England, it was formed in 1919, after the First World War, as the Government Code and Cypher School (GC&CS) and was known under that name until 1946. The Government Communications Headquarters(GCHQ) has worked in synergy with top British Secret service agencies like the MI6 and MI5 to provide information assurance to the Government and armed forces of Britain.. The committee's agenda being classified due to the nature of the organization sure makes it an extremely interesting and captivating experience and it is touted to be one of the most remarkable committees at LMGMUN 2018.

UNITED NATIONS GENERAL ASSEMBLY

There have been more than one hundred territorial disputes since World War Two and 51 of these remain currently unresolved. LMGMUN presents to you one of these disputes- the sovereignty of the Falkland Islands in the United Nations General Assembly.

The political differences between the Argentinians and the British over the sovereignty of this archipelago, currently giving shelter to a population of 2,916 has been blowing hot and cold for more than three hundred years now. It all started when the French took over the islands initially in the 18th century. They very soon lost control and the islands fell into the authority of the British. Since then, the Falkland Islands have been falling into the hands of sundries of countries akin to a game of catch ever since. Throughout the 20th century, negotiations were made by both, Argentina and United Kingdom to come to a mutual consensus regarding the ownership of the very self-sufficient country. Seventeen failed diplomatic compromises eventually paved way to the Falklands War, wherein almost 1,000 people lost their lives and more importantly, far from resolving the controversy, the war made the prospect of an eventual settlement more difficult therefore proving the very media lit statement right that was quoted by Argentinian writer, Jorge Luis Borges " a fight between two bald men over a comb " on the war. Argentina still believes that the islands rightfully belong to them, though various referendums suggest that 99.8% Islanders voted to remain a British territory with only 3 votes against. The delegates in this committee have the daunting task of resolving a 300 year old intricate conflict and ensuring that the Falkland Islands go into the right hands.

AGENCY EXECUTIVE OF THE GCHQ-IZHAN ABBAS

Izhan, being an experienced MUNner, has excelled in MUNs nationally as well as internationally. His participation in the Yale MUN and the Ivy League MUN Conference has brought him awards in both the conferences. Apart from MUNs, he is a die hard football enthusiast and a staunch supporter of Christiano Ronaldo and Real Madrid and devotes much of his time to pursue his interests in sports.

CHIEF OF THE JOINT INTELLIGENCE COMMITTEE- VEDANSHTANDON

Vedansh, an ardent debater and an avid reader, has a knack for public speaking. Having participated in Model UN Conferences for the past 4 years, he has over 25 MUNs to his credit. Known for his exuberant personality and spirited speeches, he believes that MUNs have become a huge part of his life and commends them for playing major role in stimulating his keen interest in national and international affairs.

EDUCATION-

- Establishment of a national goal to provide school choice to every one of the 11 million school aged poverty stricken children.
- To ensure proper effort made by universities to reduce the cost of college and student debt in collaboration with the Congress.

FOREIGN POLICY-

- Increasing cooperation between the United States and Russia.
- Fighting against the ISIS with help from the Middle Eastern allies.

IMMIGRATION-

- Building a wall along the Mexican border.
- All immigration plans must improve jobs, wages and security for all Americans and any illegal immigrants must be deported.
- Temporarily halting immigration from Sudan, Iraq, Iran, Libya, Somalia, Syria and Yemen as long as the threat from ISIS persists.

Some of these policies have led to turmoil in the country which is why the agenda at hand needs to be taken up for discussion. A delegate in this committee is expected to be aware of the common man's expectations from these policies.

JOINT CRISIS COMMITTEE

15 LMG MUN 2018 THE SPECTATOR | VOLUME 4
PRECONFERENCE ISSUE | 15TH JUNE, 2018

In this committee, take a seat back in 1962, in the hours of tension, espionage, invasions, war and threats to civilisations. Take a seat in John Fitzgerald Kennedy's Cabinet. Post the dissolution of Fulgencio Batista's Cabinet, Fidel Castro's rise to power, the strained USA-Cuba relations, the failure of the Bay of Pigs Invasion and the alignment of Cuba with the Soviet Union, conditions have become ripe for a sensational political standoff. The overt and covert apprehensions of a war appear to come to realisations with the installation of nuclear missiles in Cuba by the Soviet Union.

While the act has its multiple political agendas, an attempt to dominate the USA-USSR bloc rivalry and clash of political ideologies holds most weight and plausibility as the USA's stockpiles, powers and allies were considerable and only growing at the time. Aiming to not only better its nuclear stockpile stores and simultaneously projecting a thinly veiled threat to the United States with them but also to coerce joining of West Berlin and East Germany, the Soviet Union established missile launch sites on the Island of Cuba, a mere 90 miles off the United States of America.

Seated in this committee, one will realise the threat posed by a nuclear base 145 kilometres from their country and, hopefully, also how to deal with it when each and every action and reaction requires proficiency and knowledge of the depths of the consequences. An assiduous and sharp, politically alert (and patriotic) delegate shall be able to hold their own here as the superpower rivalry rapidly progresses and the faceoff begins. The spark is there. The existence of the nuclear war, delegates, is up to you.

JOHN F. KENNEDY'S CABINET

CHAIRPERSON- RAGHAV KOHLI

Raghav Kohli is pursuing law at Gujarat National Law University, and has just completed his second year. He is an avid reader, and loves everything associated with the Beatles and John Mayer. He was the Founder-President of the La Martiniere Model United Nations Society, and served as the Secretary General for LMUN 2014 and 2015. In his 5 years of involvement with Model UN, he has participated and chaired in several national and International Conferences.

VICE CHAIRPERSON- RAGHAV DUA

Raghav Dua has been a part of Model UN conferences throughout India in the capacity of a delegate, trainer, Executive Board member, Secretariat and as an advisor. Model UNs to him means learning and growing into a better learned individual and making a difference in the society. According to him anyone with a zeal to learn can become great, regardless of age, because intellect is not subordinate to age. It is earned and not purchased. Planning to pursue Economics and International Relations, he aims to make a difference.

FIDEL CASTRO'S CABINET

CRISIS DIRECTOR- AKSHAY HARIHARAN

Akshay Hariharan possesses an intelligent personality and has a deep interest in World and Indian Politics. His love for Model United Nations is evident through his intense involvement in conferences both as an Executive Board member and a delegate. He believes that Model United Nations provide a significant platform to express ideas regarding issues affecting the world community. Passionate about the Indian Railway, a diehard foodie and an avid photographer, Akshay is enthralled to be a part of LMG MUN 2018.

The Bay of Pigs invasion, the failed military invasion of Cuba, undertaken by the paramilitary group Brigade 2506 in 1961 had far-reaching consequences, perhaps the most important of which was the Cuban Missile Crisis.

Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev, responding to the aforementioned invasion as well as the presence of American Jupiter ballistic missiles in Italy and Turkey, appeased Cuba's request to stock nuclear missiles on the island in defence of future invasions. Khrushchev, working with Cuban revolutionary Fidel Castro gave his assent and the construction of numerous missile launch facilities was thus begun in Cuba in late 1962.

After seizing power in Cuba in 1959, leftist revolutionary leader Fidel Castro aligned himself with the Soviet Union. Following the agreement with Khrushchev, Castro led Cuba to become dependent on the Soviets for economic and military aid. During this time, the U.S. and the Soviets, with their respective allies, were engaged in the Cold War.

The tension between the two superpowers has now reached a climax after the pilot of an American Air Force U2 spy aircraft provided photographic evidence of medium and intermediate-range ballistic missile facilities. These images, according to the National Photographic Interpretation Center imagery analysts, show the first indication that the USSR was placing offensive weapons, intermediate and medium range ballistic missiles, in Cuba. The delegates in this committee have to be on their toes constantly to prevent any further aggression from the U.S.A. and also to avoid a full blown nuclear war.

CHAIRPERSON- SATVIK AGARWAL

Currently interning at the Centre for Organised Mass Killings in Singapore, Satvik has recently finished high school and is planning on moving on to doing better things, like MUNs. Apart from spending his time at MUNs, he also reads books because he has a real passion for language and words. We couldn't even begin to describe what he likes to do in his spare time because he has mastered every single thing there is to do under the sun. Not a particularly social person, if you try to outsmart him, he will leave you speechless with his sarcasm and savagery.

VICE CHAIRPERSON- SIDDHARTH BEDI

Siddhartha, currently pursuing his undergraduate degree in History from Hansraj College, is a crisis specialist. He is always trying to incorporate his interests into the crisis arcs he develops, which include travelling and history and a passion for dramatics. Siddhartha has been a member of the LMG MUN Editorial Board for the past 2 Chapters and is back for the 4th Chapter. Try not to be distracted by the deep baritone of his voice and do not focus on his 'fashion statement' hairstyles either. Never let your guard down around him, or you may miss out on the priceless puns that are thrown your way every minute.

FOR AGAINST

"Marijuana, or weed is a greenish-gray mixture of the dried flowers of Cannabis Sativa. It is consumed in hand-rolled cigarettes called joints, pipes, vaporisers or blunt."

Legalisation refers to the act of making something permissible by law while decriminalisation removes criminal charges from an action. In terms of marijuana, we seek legalisation of its use and decriminalisation of its consumption.

First and foremost, I would like to establish a fundamental concept. Choice. If marijuana is legalised in India, it would simply be made available for consumption by those who are willing to use it, and not by every single citizen of the country. Legalisation will replace the black market production and distribution with a "legitimate industry". There will be rules and regulations and the trade will be governed in a systematic manner via a network of officials, farmers and retailers instead of drug dealers. Legalisation will bring about regulation and control the exploitation of small scale farmers who are forced to sell their illegitimate produce at extremely low rates to dealers.

Furthermore, Legalisation will ensure and standardise the quality of the drug. The cannabis plant is something natural to India, especially the northern hilly regions. It has an excellent potential of becoming a cash crop, thereby benefitting poor marginal farmers in these areas. If cultivation of marijuana encouraged at an official level, an abundance of jobs would be created by the marijuana industry, both agricultural and industrial, and help reduce India's unemployment rate.

The drug has been illegal in our country since the government signed the UN's Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs treaty in 1961. However, it is clear that prohibition has failed to curb the supposed 'problem'. More than 1,600 hectares of cultivable farmland is under illegal cannabis cultivation. The rate is only increasing.

When you legalise it, you recognise it. When you recognise it, you have a better chance and regulating it. When you're regulating it, you prevent or curb the repercussions that are otherwise inevitable. Therefore, legalisation of marijuana in India is not a lost cause.

SHOULD MARIJUANA BE LEGALISED IN INDIA?

GUEST WRITER VASUNDHARA PRASAD EXPLORES THE PROS AND CONS

The question today really is- How do we as a society benefit from legalising marijuana? Perhaps the propagators of legalisation are seeking only financial benefits. However, the health of the citizens should be given utmost precedence. How is legalisation of yet another mind-altering drug the right thing to do? It needs to be a well thought out decision, considering the consequences future generations will have to face.

The plant's primary mind-altering chemical comes from delta-9-tetrahydrocannabinol, or THC. Over the past few decades, the concentration of THC in the cannabis plant has been increasing, making it more potent than ever.

What causes the "high" experience is marijuana's tendency to quickly fuse into the bloodstream, over-activating specific receptors. This leads to feelings of an altered sense of time, impaired body movement and difficulty in thinking. In the long run, it may lead to breathing problems, heart disease, hallucinations, and other mental problems.

Marijuana consumption will make our society prone to a new set of problems. Increased crime rate due to excessive intoxication, corrupt practises that will inevitably invade the system and lead to the creation of an entire "legalised" class of drug lords disguised as businessmen.

Once legalised and available, the society will inevitably become more susceptible to such things.

The unbridgeable gap of unawareness makes these consequences uncontrollable. By legalising it, the state in a way validates its use. It becomes accessible, leading to a significant rise in its consumption, making more people its victims in the long run.

In a country where people don't even know how to pronounce it, most consume it just because it's fun, we legalise it? Keeping in mind that 16 year olds these days get alcohol and cigarettes too easily, we put weed on the racks for anyone and everyone to consume? It'll be impossible for the government to successfully regulate its use. The ill effects that follow are bound to overcome the little good that might come out of it.

If the Universe had a law, it would be that sometimes, we simply have to get used to certain things that go on around us, like stars exploding and collapsing, supernovas blowing up silly old stuff like solar systems and Donald Trump being elected the President of the United States. In the universe of MUNs, we have a rather similar concept: get used to strange things happening at any place, any time; otherwise you might want to blow your brains out. Here are some things (and people) that you should definitely look out for during LMG MUN:

STRANGE THINGS

ACCENTS:
BORROWERS:
They spend each un-moderated caucus agitatedly requesting (aggressively demanding) for strange things ranging from pens to laptops, shirts and pairs of pants. They'll make you giggle, as you never should.

THE MINIONS OF MAD-EYE MOODY:

They bring along flasks full of ice-cold sparkling water straight from the Himalayas, and look on snobbishly as the rest of us are reduced to drinking Bisleri in homunculus bottles. They do not even need to beckon the water-bearing Logistics (or in some cases the IP) by a 'Hey, you!' to insult them anymore; they simply glance contemptuously away.

TARZAN'S ADVENTURES:
Growing bored of normalcy, the dancers at the socials transform it into a scene from the adventures of Tarzan by the end. Tarzan, usually clad in a tuxedo and a weird tie, sits upon the shoulders of his friends, the apes, and swings from one unto the other, until all of them begin to yearn for bananas and throw Tarzan off into the arms of Jane (who is either a robot or a mannequin). These delegates (or EB members) are the ones who are ALWAYS featured in the newsletter by the IP.

HAVE TO GET

FIDGET, FIDGET, STUPID MIDGET:
Using their brains so seldom, the delegates begin to feel the need for some activity to rouse themselves, and ever since last September have resorted to spinning metal thingummybobs all the accursed time! (Not that they're any more intelligent afterwards, by the way)

SOCIAL CHANGERS:

Eager to bring good to society, they rush into the changing rooms before the socials, and quickly don clothes to rival the Corinthians and dandies of Victorian England. Though hated by the hotel staff, they have been prominent entertainers for quite some time.

DURING LMG MUN

PEOPLE BOASTING OF THEIR MILLION ADMIRERS:

Not even Kardashian could have so many speechless messages of love sent to her during the end of two days. Believe us; they're writing to themselves. There's no other way to explain it. They have got to be writing to themselves.

Last Year's PREVIOUSLY ON LMGMUN Highlights

As we enter into the 4th Chapter of LMGMUN, let's reminisce into the previous year's conference to see our potential growth over the past year.

Once the event finally commenced on 1st June, 2017 with the Orientation which was followed by the Opening Ceremony on the morning of 2nd June, 2017, the Executive Board members had been formally introduced and the delegates had been familiarized with the Committees and the agendas. A special video of Kalki Koechlin reciting a poem by Swati Singh, an ex- International Press member, was played for everyone present in the school auditorium.

The committee sessions began as the day continued. After the roll call and other beginning procedures, as the delegates were getting more comfortable in their environment, the committees started moving forward in a particular direction. While some committees like the Medellin Cartel and the United Nations Security Council were dynamic from the very beginning, some committees like the CIA and the KGB which worked as Joint Crisis Committees were more on the dry side during the first few conference sessions.

While the committees picked up pace the next day, there was a buzz of excitement among the MUNners, not because important discussions were to take place or new crises were to be announced but solely because that day's committee sessions were to be followed by Motions for Entertainment and Socials in the La Martiniere Girls' College auditorium. After some poor jokes about Saddam Hussein and pulling the Crisis Director, Devesh Agarwal's leg, everyone was finally escorted to the school campus for a fun night. People danced with friends, EB members and teachers. There were groups of people having the time of their lives alongside duos and couples enjoying their moment. Executive Board member Siddharth Bedi managed to catch everyone's attention when he danced with the Rapporteur of UNSC, Raghav Wadhwa.

4th June, 2017, the last day of LMGMUN 2017 was an eventful one. Where on one side the delegates were working hard to make sure their committees were a success, the IP was having a fun time. After having written several committee reports over the past three days, the reporters were now spending their last few hours taking interviews, playing never have I ever with the delegates and making memes for the final issue of the newsletter to be a lively one.

The 3rd Chapter of LMGMUN finally came to an end with the closing ceremony and the distribution of awards to the delegates whose hard work and dedicated research made the committees a success.

VAISHNAVI DUBE

"Wait, I'm not done yet!"

Vaishnavi Dube, an alumnus of La Martiniere Girls' College read Humanities with Elective English and Economics, was the Prefect of the Better English Expression Society and is now planning to pursue English Literature. She aims to either become the Editor in Chief of a leading newspaper or magazine or own a publishing house. Her CV boasts not only of a spotless academic record, but also active participation in story writing competitions and poetry slams. Fondly known in the writing circuit as an obsessive, compulsive and impulsive writer, Vaishnavi has been published in NIE, written for various NGOs and the school magazine.

Her MUN journey began as a reporter for the International Press in the first edition of LMG MUN and since then, she has participated in innumerable MUNs both as the Head of International Press and a member of the same. She believes that though MUNs breed a culture of global awareness and holistic education, the sudden boom of various independently organized MUNs with "fun" committees that have no implications on the global scenario and are simulated for "material for the IP, gossip and gibberish", completely defeat the purpose of MUNs where the aim is to come to consensus through peaceful debates and discussions upon various grave issues that are a threat to humanity.

She breathes Literature, and will often be found sniffing pages of old books. Obsessed with the Lucy Poems of Wordsworth, Vaishnavi worships all literary Gods from the Brownings, Keats and Shakespeare, to Neruda, Bukowski and Marquez. Though she will fight you tooth and nail and prove that Dr. Seuss and Silverstein are the best poets to have ever existed, she will also recite Tagore and Coleridge in the same breath.

She is a paradox, crazy and genius, though in her defence, she believes one needs to be the former to be the latter. She knows how to dance and swim and when she's not attending theatre festivals or busying herself with cultural fests, she immerses herself in the practise of sarcasm-devouring every bit of House M.D., or perhaps Grey's Anatomy when her hopeless romantic begins to show. With a constant itch of curiosity, this learning and dreaming, vibrant, kaleidoscope of fiery passion is constantly confused for the Goan hippie with a gypsy soul.

DEVISHI KAPOOR

"Though she be but little, she is fierce."

Devishi Kapoor is a meritorious Science student of the twelfth grade. She is a vibrant and self-motivated team player with excellent communication skills. Painting in watercolour and playing the guitar are some of her favourite hobbies. She is the Editor-in-Chief of the Blue and Gold, the college magazine. Having represented the school at State and National levels, Devishi is extremely popular with teachers, batch mates, seniors, and juniors. A dreamer, her heart lives in the Italian countryside where she imagines herself to be the owner of a vast vineyard. On a lazy afternoon, this little Miss Muffet can be caught hiding away with a cup of coffee and a fictional or dramatic novel.

Being a confident writer, she has been a reporter and the Editor in Chief of the International Press in LMG MUN for the past three years. Devishi believes that MUNs help to build stronger individuals with a unique thought process which is important in a competitive world. With an eclectic blend of flexibility and perseverance, Devishi is here to make LMG MUN a success.

ISHETA SETIA

"I am only responsible for what I say, not for what you understand."

Kulsoom Rizavi is a student of class 10 at La Martiniere Girls' College studying science with computers and mathematics. An avid debater, she started her journey with Model United Nations with the 3rd session of LMG MUN. She believes Model United Nations are the perfect platform to practice diplomacy whilst receiving apt criticism.

An accomplished lady, she has received accolades in numerous fields. She has a wide variety of interests and is always on the lookout for innovative projects. She has been awarded by the President of India twice for her scientific inventions. Her other interests include graphics designing, coding and painting.

Known to be a genius, it is Kulsoom's hardwork that allows her to excel in all she does. You can often find her cooped up behind the computer researching on the most bizarre topic ever. Her current goal is publishing a research paper or two before graduating from high school.

In the future she wants to study international relations and become a diplomat. Holding deep interest in international affairs, she hopes that this edition of LMG MUN is one the memories of which will be cherished by all.

ANUSHREE CHANDRA

"If you are good at something, never do it for free."

Anushree Chandra is a class 12 student reading Humanities with Psychology and Economics. She is also the College Vice Captain. An avid public speaker, she has taken part in a number of Debates and MUN Conferences, both as a delegate and a member of the International Press. However, her forte lies in Quizzing. She is a national level quizzzer and has won accolades for the same, not only at the local level but also at the national level. Known among her friends as a 'Walking Encyclopedia', Anushree can often be found studying for an upcoming quiz or talking about the latest headlines in the newspaper.

When free, Anushree prefers to write poetry, read dystopian novels and crime thrillers or watch TV series like The Crown, Narcos, Sherlock and Game of Thrones. A lover of all things Nazi, she will not tolerate any insult of Adolf Hitler.

Anushree wishes to pursue social sciences after class 12 and then become an Indian Foreign Services Officer. She believes that an MUN is not just about winning awards but about making a difference and the world a better place. She hopes that the delegates have an enlightening experience at LMG MUN 2018 and take back something valuable from here.
